20 Children Die

Plastic Bags: New Killer In The Home

A Lower Bucks youngster shows how he could be snarled in a plastic bag and lead to possible suffocation. This is just a picture but more than 20 youngsters across the country have died this way. (Courier-Times Photo)

It is difficult to conceive of a plastic bag as a lethal instrument but in Bucks County and across the nation plastic bags have been responsible for the death of a Riegelsville child and 19 other children.

The alarming deaths have caused safety and health department officials to issue urgent warnings to parents to keep the plastic bags from their tiny children.

The bags have a clinging ability and youngsters can easily be snarled in the bags and suffocate to death.

Brynn Alma Lonon of Riegelsville, died last week when she became entangled in one of the bags left around the house. She was five months old.

The bags are used by cleaning establishments to keep clothes clean for delivery. Food merchants also use the bags to package certain foods including fruits and vegetables.

Bucks County Health Department Director, Dr. Joseph W. Still, urged all parents to destroy the plastic bags immediately upon reaching the house.

"Once the bag has served its purpose in bringing the food or clothing to the house, it should be destroyed and thrown away immediately," he said.

Health officials pointed out that many of the deaths occur in the few minutes after the bags come into the house.

An Alleghany County dry cleaners association said several of their cleaners had discontinued the use of the bags after two children suffocated in that area of the state.

A Congressman has introduced a bill requiring plastic bag manufacturers to place the fact that the bags can be dangerout on the outside of the bags.

Congressman Henry Reuss of Wisconsin said he proposed the bill after a youngster suffocated in a plastic couch cover.

The bill would be similar to one enacted in 1956 requiring

Good Evening!

Our Phillies having their troubles.

They just can't seem to win a game these days. One consolation: they've got classy company for, behold the mighty Yanks, finally in the basement.

Behold the weather, we'd say. Is this May?

Near 90 yesterday with the atmosphere soggy enough to swim in it and more of the same today and tomorrow.

Maybe we should be opening up the swimming pools. They won't be more inviting the rest of the year.

But it's taken a long time. We just can't remember when that short strip hasn't looked and felt like a worn out washboard. Washboard? We've heard the word, but what does it mean?

Wrath of the Congress and of the country falling on arrogant Teamsters' Prexy Hoffa as the result of his reckless and irresponsible threats of a national strike and now deposed Dave Beck's errand boy says he didn't say it at all.

This is one time the lad opened his mouth and got his foot caught in it. You just can't threaten a revolution against the United States government these days—or any days—and get away with it.

About time this Kremlin fellow gets down to business.

COAST-TO-COAST RAID NABS 27 SLEEPING RACKETEERS

Charged With Conspiracy In Crackdown

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Federal agents and state police began a coast-to-coast roundup today of 27 big name racketeers who attended the 1957 gangland convention in Apalachin, N.Y.

Atty. Gen. William P. Rogers disclosed that all of them were indicted by a federal grand jury in New York on charges of conspiring to obstruct justice by refusing to disclose what went on at the November, 1957, underworld meeting.

Thirty six others, including Joseph Barbara Sr., who was host at the conclave in his hilltop Apalachin home, were named as co-conspirators but not defendants.

Some of the men were routed out of bed at 6 a.m. e.d.t. as the nationwide crackdown began.

At least two of the men were reported to be members of the Mafia or ill-famed "black hand" society of Italy.

The New York grand jury that returned the indictments had been conducting an investigation of racketeering and crime syndicates particularly in the ladies' garment industry, and of the East Coast traffic in narcotics.

Rogers said all 27 named as defendants were accused of conspiring to obstruct justice by giving false and evasive testimony about the rendezvous of racketeers at Apalachin. Three faced additional charges of perjury on grounds they lied to police, investigating committees and grand juries.

The conspiracy charge carries a maximum penalty of a $5,000 fine and five years in jail, or both, on each count. The maximum penalty for perjury, per count, is a $2,000 fine, two years in jail, or both.

The Apalachin meeting took place a few weeks after the Manhattan barbershop slaying of Albert Anastasia, long - time top racketeer and Murder Inc. executioner. Investigators speculated that the underworld had come together to name new leaders for Anastasia's territory in crime.

All the delegates who have testified in public hearings have claimed they simply stopped by to visit a sick friend—Barbara.

Three of the defendants have been in Manhattan civil jail since last August for their refusal to testify before the state commission of investigation under promise of immunity from State prosecution. They are Paul C. Castellano, Carmine Lombardozzi and Michele Miranda, all of New York City.

Federal attorneys said narcotics agents made most of today's arrests because the grand jury was concerned with that problem, not because the indictment related to narcotics traffic.

The 27 were accused specifically of impeding justice by refusing to tell what went on at the meeting in Barbara's home.

Rogers said today's mass arrest was part of a long-range Justice Department drive against organized crime.

The indictments, he said, were the work of Milton R. Wessel,

Bristol Twp. Police Plan Speed Checks

Bristol Township police will run a series of speed checks in residential sections during the summer it was announced today by Chief John R. Stewart.

Stewart said there have been numerous accidents in residential sections of Levittown and numerous complaints from residents of speeders.

"We are going to crack down before someone gets killed," the chief said. He pointed out that several children have been hit by cars lately. "School will be out soon and there will be more children in the streets," he said.

The speed checks will be run through all residential sections he added, including Croydon, Croydon Acres and other communities. In addition there will be checks along such through roads as Route 13, Route 413 and others.

Police will be armed with stop watches, tape measures and certified speedometers in the drive against speeders, he said.

"We want to warn the violators in advance so they won't have any squawk later," the chief added.

Library Drive Gets $6,572 In 1st Returns

Under clear May skies — and undeterred by an early blast of summery heat — 900 Lower Bucks women fanned out over a 25 square mile area, calling on approximately 20,000 homes as volunteer solicitors for the Regional Public Library during last night's drive to raise $17,500.

Last night's returns, with approximately 50 per cent of the Levittown area reported, and no reports in from Fairless Hills or the Croydon area, totalled $6,572.31.

No returns from Fairless Hills or Croydon are expected until the end of the week, Bernard Glaser, fund drive chairman, said.

Returns from the Levittown areas should be in to the library committee by Monday, he said.

Collection Point

From 9 p.m. until midnight, section captains from all over the area reported into the collection point at the Philadelphia National Bank, where a group of 20 or more volunteers from the Levittown Exchange and Kiwanis Clubs served as tellers from the receipt of monies collected, under the direction of Robert Rockhill, manager.

First section to report was Farmbrook in Levittown, where Mrs. Alex Kandel, section captain, had 13 women soliciting. Total for the 12 lieutenants reporting was $133.72.

Mrs. Evelyn McCargar, general chairman of the house-to-house drive and her area chairmen, Mrs. Robert Bendig and Mrs. C. J. Fadden, were on duty at the collection point to tally the kits as they were returned.

Glaser Pleased

Glaser, commenting on the resudts of the drive, said: "The wonderful generosity displayed by the residents of Levittown, and the magnificent performance done by our workers up to this point, have been more gratifying than we could have expected.

"Since 50 per cent of the returns are yet to come in, this will represent the greatest outlay of monies for any door-to-door drive in the history of Levittown, and once again indicates the deep-seated feeling of the people here for providing excellent library facilities for their children and themselves.

"I would like to take this opportunity," he said, "to express my sincere thanks to the more than 1,000 women who actually did the hard job of consummating this door-to-door canvass on behalf of the library. I am sure that the results thus far must be as satisfying to them as it is to us.

"We will make a final report of the results of this drive on Tuesday, when all returns will have been received."

Bomb Scares Plague Philadelphia Police

15 MPH 'Minor' 'Hills Crash Ends In Broken Neck, Death

An autopsy last night revealed that a 56-year-old Fairless Hills grandmother, injured yesterday afternoon in an automobile accident in the Fairless Hills Shopping Center, died of a broken neck.

The woman, Mary Jupina, 145 Bedford Road, was dead on arrival at Lower Bucks County Hospital at 1:20 p.m.

Falls Township Patrolmen Wallace McCammish and John Lent said the accident occurred shortly before 1 p.m. at the entrance to the shopping center near Oxford Valley Road.

15 MPH

The victim was riding in a car driven by her husband, John, 55, when the vehicle collided with another car, driven by Mrs. Anna Forney 42, 209 Austin Drive, Fairless Hills.

The patrolmen said the two cars collided at a speed of no more than 15 miles an hour.

Chief Franklin Kirby, Falls Township police, said the impact was probably enough to cause the broken neck.

MRS. MARY JUPINA

Chief Kirby said the fatality was the second of the year in Falls Township. A man was killed in an accident last February on Route 13 in the township.

Kirby said this was the first fatality in the seven year history of the Fairless Hills Shopping Center.

The chief said the Shopping Center is private property owned by the Danherst Corporation. Falls Township police are unable to lodge any charges on private property.

Kirby said the information will be turned over to the county for possible prosecution.

Survivors include a son, John, Jr., of Levittown and another daughter, Marion, Levittown, and eight grandchildren.

Police said the only visible sign of an accident on the woman's body was a small laceration near her nose. Damage to both cars was minor.

The accident appeared so minor at the time, police said, that pictures of the damaged cars were not taken at the scene.

The Levittown - Fairless Hills Rescue Squad transported the victim to the hospital. Mrs. Jupina was unconcious at the time she was pdac d in the ambulance.

Strong Struble Support Puzzles Democratic Leaders In County

County Democratic leaders were sifting returns today trying to determine the reason for the surprisingly strong showing of rebel David H. Struble, Falls Township tax collector in the Tuesday's primary election.

Struble came within 3,000 of upsetting party boss John T. Welsh, in the race for the party's nomination for county commissioner.

Welsh, chairman of the board of commissioners, was seeking re-election along with Adolph A. Andrews, of Bristol Township.

The pair was expected to run away from Struble and J. Patrick Ansbro, another rebel.

Instead, according to unofficial figures, Struble drew 7,564 votes to 10,657 for Welsh. Andrews topped all the candidates with 11,205.

Strongest In Falls

Struble made his strongest showing in Falls Township, his own balliwick. The vote was 1,747 for Struble, and 792 for Andrews while Welsh got only 736.

Ansbro, who lives in Falls Township, trailed in his home municipality, as he did in the county. He was named on 630 ballots in Falls.

Struble actually got twice as many votes in Falls Tuesday as he did in the 1957 primary when running for tax collector.

Another puzzler for county Democrats was the showing of Thomas D. McBride, independent candidate for the state Supreme Court.

Michael Eagen, organization candidate, was expected to carry the county as he did the state.

May Is Merry — Hot, Sticky, Too

Yesterday's high mark was a sultry 87 at 5 p.m. and today's high is expected to top that. The mercury has reached 90 once this year on May 12.

Thundershowers are expected overnight but the weatherman said the rain will not do much to relieve the heat or humidity.

"Looks like it will be a long summer," the weatherman said philosophically.

This morning's lowest reading was 67 at 7 a.m.

Middletown Industry Unit Study OK'd

A sub-committee to study the formation of an industrial development board in Middletown Township is being formed by the Middletown Township Planning Commission.

The sub-committee was approved last night at a joint meeting of the Middletown Township Supervisors and the Planning Commission.

It will report to the township supervisors within a month.

Formation of the sub-committee came after Gordon Exley, director of the Bucks County Industrial Development Corporation, told the supervisors and commissioners that the corporation would welcome a cooperative effort on the local level.

Warning

But Exley warned that if the Middletown unit attempted to duplicate the program of the Development Corporation, "it would hurt itself more than the corporation."

Supervisor Walter S. Farley Jr., proposed the township industrial board on April 8.

When Farley reintroduced the motion last night, Township Supervisors Russell Newbold and Raymond H. Secules asked for more time to study the proposal.

John Logan, planning commission, then proposed the sub-committee, and Farley agreed to go along with the counter-proposal.

In the debate that preceded the motion, Oliver Marron, owner of the Woodbourne industrial tract, and Robert Ruehl, realtor, asked Exley why a site in Falls Township was chosen instead of the Woodbourne tract for the Strick Trailer Co. plant.

Exley said the final decision was made by the Strick firm after it considered 23 sites suggested by the development corporation.

Frank Wisniewski, of the planning commission, asked Exley, "What can we do to make the Woodbourne tract suitable for industry?"

Highways

Exley said the extension of the Super Highway and the completion of the Delaware Valley Expressway will help give the tract more access highways which he said it needs.

Farley, Norvin Nathan, who is the Democratic candidate for township supervisor, and Robert Lattomus, aRepublican commiteeman and a member of the Cobalt Lattomus, a Republican commiteeman and a member of the Cobalt Ridge Civic Association argued over the way Farley introduced the industrial board at the April meeting.

Lattomus charged that Farley made the proposal "hasty" because he knew tha. Lattomus was going to ask for an industrial committee under instructions from the Cobalt Ridge Civic Association.

Lattomus had received those instructions at a meeting attended by Nathan one night before the township supervisors met.

Nathan charged that Lattomus was merely afraid that "Walter Farley would become known as the father of industrial development in Middletown Township."

Farley argued that the industrial board had originally been suggested by the township supervisors in 1951. He said there was nothing mporper about introducing an item not on the agenda at a supervisors meeting.

After the meeting, Raymond Secules, supervisor, issued a statement in which he charged that Farley proposed the industrial board in an attempt to take credit for something advanced by a civic association.

Wessel praised the assistance he received from enforcement officers all over the country. He particularly singled out agents of the federal Bureau of Narcotics for help in the drive.

Rogers said the indictments were returned last week but kept sealed until because one of the 36 co-conspirators—Dominic J. Alaimo—was being tried at Scranton, Pa., on charges of violating the Taft-Hartley Act. He was found guilty on 34 counts last Tuesday.

Named as defendants were:

Joseph Bonanno, Tucson, Ariz.

Russell A. Bufalino, Pittston, Pa.

Ignatius Cannone, Endwell, N.Y.

Paul C. Castellano, Brooklyn, N.Y.

Joseph F. Civello, Dallas, Tex.

Frank Cucchriara, Watertown, Mass.

John A. Marco, Shaker Heights, Ohio.

Frank A. Desimone, Downey, Calif.

Natale Evole, Brooklyn, N.Y.

Salvatore Falcone, Miami, Fla.

Joseph Ida, Highland Park, N.J.

James C. Laduca, Buffalo, N.Y.

Louis A. Larasso, Linden, N.J.

Carmen Lombardozzi, Brooklyn, N.Y.

Antonia Magaddino, Niagara Falls, N.Y.

Joseph Magliocco, Brooklyn, N.Y.

Joseph Profaci, Magliocco's brother-in-law, also of Brooklyn.

Frank T. Majuri, Elizabeth, N.J.

Michele Miranda, Forest Hills, N.Y.

John C. Montana, Buffalo, N.Y.

John Ormento, Lido Beach, N.Y.

James Osticco, Pittston, Pa.

Anthony P. Riela, West Orange, N.J.

John T. Scalish, Cleveland, Ohio.

Angelo J. Sciandra, Wyoming, Pa.

Simone Scozzari, Rosemead, Calif.

Pasquale Turrigiano, Endwell, N.Y.

Profaci, Magliocco and Turrigiano also were named in the perjury counts of the indictment. They were accused of lying under oath to a federal grand jury when questioned about details of the underworld convention at Apalachin.

The indictment charges that the defendants and co-conspirators knew that a federal grand jury in New York City had started a special inquiry in March, 1956, into racketeering and crime syndicates with particular concentration on racketeering in the ladies' garment industry. The panel also looked into the narcotics traffic on the East Coast.

Among those named as a co-conspirator was Vito Genovese, often termed the "don" or leader of the Mafia. He recently was convicted of violating the federal narcotics act.

Barbara's son, Joseph Jr. also was named as a co-conspirator.

The indictment charges that the defendants conspired to give false testimony to New York authorities, the New York Legislature, county courts in New Jersey, and grand juries in New York and California.

Asst. Atty. Gen. Malcolm R. Wilkey, who heads the Justice Department's criminal division, said the indictment was "the result of painstaking legal and investigative work over a long period of time."

He added that the Justice Department and other federal agencies will continue their "intensified drive against organized crime."

Lower Tax Yield Seen In Township

The merchantile tax proposed by the Bristol Township School Board will probably yield only $75,000 instead of the $431,230 originally estimated, it was stated today by the Benjamin F. Stockett, board president.

Stockett said the $75,000 figure was determined by an actual survey or census of the 325 business establishments in the township. The survey was taken by the accounting firm recently retained by the school board.

The survey was made after a report of the Pennsylvania Economy League claimed that the yield of the tax would be only $50,000.

As a result of the survey, Stockett said the budget has been revised.

The school board will meet 8 o'clock tonight in the cafeteria of the Benjamin Franklin Junior High School. This is the regular business meeting postponed from last week.

The board had previously invited discussion of the budget at the meeting and a large crowd is expected to attend.

The Economy League study of the township school budget will probably be explained at tonight's meeting.

Stockett said the school board and administrators have gone over the report.

Answers Criticism

In a statement today he answered some of the criticism of the budget contained in the economy league report.

The economy league claimed custodial costs were too high in township schools. However, Stockett said that custodial costs for the coming year will be only $9,300 higher than the current year. This is despite the fact that two new schools will be opened, he said.

The economy league report also suggested that the number of pupils per class room be increased. Stockett said, in his statement, that school board had established community schools throughout the township thus decreasing the cost of transportation. The program has "also brought about some reduction in class sizes which has enhanced the instructional program for the boys and girls of this township."

The statement added that with the expected increased enrollments in the future, class sizes will automatically be enlarged.

The economy league report also questioned the school policies on sick leave for teachers. Stockett said the township is complying with state school code requirements. He added the school board "is studying this program to bring about any savings that may be made because of careful checks on the use of this privilege by the professional employes."

Suggests Meeting

Stockett said he will also suggest a meeting of the Pennsylvania Economy League and the Bristol Township Kindergarten Association.

Hagood Nominated In Middletown Race

Tabulations for the Middletown Township Democratic primary election in yesterday's Courier-Times did not list Lettie Hagood who polled 1,217 votes for school board.

She ran third on the Democratic school board ticket and was nominated along with Helen Radtke and Irving Susskind.

Township Nominees Gird For November

It will be John Petro, of Levittown, against Joseph Haines, Edgely contractor, in Bristol Township's justice of the peace race next November.

Petro, a Democrat, by a scant 215 votes knocked off JP Earl B. Dougherty, of Edgely, who was trying for reelection, and Samuel Glantz, a Levittown lawyer.

Haines won the Republican nomination by defeating Robert Camarote by a better than two-to-one margin.

Second Shot

This is Petro's second shot at the JP position. Two years ago he was defeated in the Democratic primary by Rene Tritschler, of Croydon. If Petro wins now he will be the first Levittowner to hold the office in Bristol Township.

The school board slates (based on unofficial returns of Tuesday's voting) has Democrats John F. Malloy, Angela Blatt and Edward J. Smith, running against Newton Parkes, George Fischer and John Hess, Republicans. Three of the seven seats on the school board are at stake.

The three Democrats live in Levittown as do two of the Republicans. The third Republican, Fischer, lives on Old Orchard Lane, off Bath Road.

Gerald R. Hildebrandt, Democrat, is opposed to Paul Blecher, Republican, for auditor. Hildebrandt is currently serving as auditor through a court appointment. His term expires the end of this year.

Commissioner Races

The line up for the township commissioner races is: William Frantz, Democrat, against Harry Fawkes, Republican, in the first ward; Joseph Minni, Democrat, against Carl Vetter, Republican, in the third ward; John Mazur, Democrat, against Leroy D. Evans, Republican, in the fifth ward; Richard Bonner, Democrat, against Vincent Hartley, Republican, in the seventh ward, and William D. Muller, Democrat, against Samuel U. Delp, in the Ninth ward. Muller is currently filling out the unexpired term of Joseph McGeever on the board. Muller was appointed to the spot.

The race for the Democratic school board nominations produced the biggest surprise with the nomination of Malloy. Some politicians had predicted Malloy, who had announced he was in favor of kindergartens, would finish last. Instead he lead the field of nine candidates.

On the Republican side Parkes lead the field of school board candidates with 1,217 votes; Hess was second with 935. Then came Fischer with 915. These three defeated Lucinda Roberts who had 739; Helen Kelly, with 706, and Richard Hepburn with 605.

Gale Winds Lash South

United Press International

Tornadoes, gale-force winds and torrential rains lashed the Midwest and South late Wednesday in a dizzy display of violent spring weather.

One man was drowned in a flash flood at Nevada, Mo., and twisters and 80 mile-per-hour winds injured six persons as floods, power failures and heavy damage added to the misery wrought by the storms.

A tornado struck near Promise City, Iowa, Wednesday night, injuring Mr. and Mrs. Harold Hickie and their three children and destroying their farm home and buildings.

In the South, a tornado cut a swath through Selma, Ala. Torrential rains flooded streets in New Orleans, and Jacksonville and Tallahassee, Fla.

The U.S. Weather Bureau reported 3.36 inches of rain in an hour at Lake Mills, Iowa, with three inches at nearby Forest City in a similar period.

Ten families fled their homes along Soldier Creek near Kankakee, Ill., following a four-inch rainstorm in the Chicago area.

Bassett Tally Shows 66 Votes

An error in the tabulation of first ward votes in Bristol Borough yesterday showed Charles Bassett receiving 56 votes to win the Democratic nomination for borough Council.

Recheck Gives Waterbor Nod

According to revised unofficial returns of the Falls Township Democratic Organization, Harry Waterbor will be the third Democrat on the party's school board slate.

In first returns, Richard Weakland appeared to have gained the third spot beating Waterbor by three votes.

A recheck of the polls showed that there were ten more votes registered for Waterbor in district 4-5 than had been recorded.

The difference gave Waterbor the victory 1,183-1,176. The official returns from Doylestown will be announced tomorrow.

James F. Smith and Raymond Lupschutz will be the other two Democratic school board candidates.

Strong Struble Vote Puzzles Democrats

However McBride carried the county by 1,100 votes.

McBride ran strong in Falls Township along with Struble. The jurist also made a good showing in Bristol Township.

McBridge was appointed to the high court by former Governor George Leader. However the state Democratic organization opposed his election whch would have seated him for 21 years.

Welsh had stated on election night that Struble apparently was using some of McBride's money.

Struble denied this. He added that he had tied in with McBride but he said the McBride committee did not put any money into his campaign. "They paid for sample ballots, that was all."

Struble claimed he and McBride ran together only in areas where Struble was strongest such as Falls, Middletown and Bristol Townships. McBride was supported by both factions in Middletown while only one supported Struble. Struble carried Middletown but by only a small margin.

Beats Welsh

Highlights in the local races saw the defeat of JP Earl B. Dougherty in Bristol Township's Democratic primary. Dougherty was stymied in his bid for reelection by John M. Petro. Joseph Haines won the GOP nomination.

In the township school board race a political novice, John F. Malloy, came out on top of a field of nine candidates. He ran on a pro kindergarten platform.

Middletown Township Democrats just about ended the political career of one-time party chairman and former school board president Charles J. Tetlow. Tetlow was defeated in his bid for the party's nomination as a school director. This was the second straight time he was defeated in a primary election bid.

At the same time the Democrats nominated Norvin Nathan for supervisor and Dominick Spadaccino for justice of the peace in a hotly-contested fight.

JP Albert H. Schultz was nominated as the Democratic candidate to seek a second term in Bensalem Township.

He will be opposed by Frank E. Martin, Republican who deeated two candidates.

Loses By One Vote

The highlight in the Morrisville voting was the one vote defeat of John V. Sawyer seeking reelection.

He was defeated by Michael Demech in the Democratic primary.

In the Falls Township race, James F. Smith and George Rickert won the Democratic nomination for school director and auditor, respectively, over the organization choices.

In the hot JP race, the organization candidates of Elwood Fritz and Ed Esposito beat out an eight-team field. The Democrats will meet Republicans James Paul and John Melvin, incumbent, in the general election.

Highlight of the Lower Makefield voting was the defeat of Harry Hoffman, former supervisor, in his comeback try. Supervisor Russell Carter topped Hoffman by 140 votes in the Republican voting.

There was not one candidate on the Democratic side.

STEEL SCRAP

Steel scrap prices firmed in the Chicago market with prices up $1 to $2 from recent lows. Many dealers who were willing to accept almost any price just a few weeks ago now are more optimistic.

Dr. Shepler will resign his position with the Township Schools at the end of the school year.

Dr. Shepler, who came from the Pittsburgh area, was unavailable for comment this morning.

He is the second school administrator to accept a position with another school system for next year. Dr. Ron Davis, assistant principal at Delhaas High School, is leaving for a postion as a junior high school principal at Cheltenham Township.

Bucks Youth Alternate Air Academy Choice

Three young men from the Bucks-Lehigh District have been tentatively selected to receive a principal or alternate appointment to the U.S. Air Force Academy with the class entering next month, it was announced by U.S. Rep. Willard S. Curtin of the 8th District.

In making the announcement, Representative Curtin emphasized that the nominees still have to pass rigid medical examinations. Their selections were made on the basis of their achievements in the qualifying examinations, Representative Curtin said.

Those chosen by the Department of the Air Force are:

Jeffrey A. Wildonger, 827 N. 27th St., Allentown; Rembert Honeycutt, Bristol Pike RD 1, Morrisville, and John A. Quinn, 2748 Liberty St., Allentown. Wildonger is a principal, while Honeycutt and Quinn are alternates.

"In view of the highly competitive nature of the Air Force Academy tests," Rep. Curtin said, "our Bucks-Lehigh District can well be proud of having placed three of its young men in line for these appointments. When it is considered that they competed with several hundred young men in the State of Pennsylvania alone their showing is all the more commendable."

Honeycutt, son of Mr. and Mrs. F. D. Honeycutt, was graduated from Pennsbury High School in 1958. He is employed as a laborer in the open hearth division at Fairless Works, U. S. Steel Co. He was a National Honor Society Member in school, and active in sports including wrestling, baseball and swimming.

Going In Circles

By MAURY ALLEN

Mrs. Karl Feilcke, 44 Verdant Road, Violetwood, Levittown, is 72. But this sweet lady is not resting in a rocking chair. Her activities would put women half her age to shame. And in the twilight of her years she has to start a new life. She became a widow last month when her 74-year-old husband, a consulting engineer, died suddenly. It was a shock to Mrs. Feilcke, who hasn't any children, but she is resolved to do as her husband wished. And one of his main interests was the library in Levittown.

"He loved books," Mrs. Feilcke said, "and I will do all I can to help the Regional Library."

A group of youngsters in the neighborhood collected over $100 for Mrs. Feilcke when her husband died. "They wanted to do something for me. I don't need the money, I will use it as my husband wished. I will donate it to the Regional Library. Maybe it will help to make other youngsters happy. Reading is such a wonderful pastime," Mrs. Feilcke said.

"My husband was very much interested in the Library and in Levittown. I know this is how he would have wanted the money spent," she said.

If you drive by the Feilcke home any day, you might see Mrs. Feilcke out in the garden. She putters around a little now but is beginning to learn a little more about the garden since her husband is gone. She wasn't working in the garden Tuesday. She was busy bringing voters out in her district as a committeewoman in Bristol Township. And another big project is coming up. Mrs. Feilcke will learn how to drive.

"I don't expect any trouble over this. I'm not afraid in the least to learn how to drive," she said

Mrs. Feilcke may be a little upset when she reads this. She called to tell us about the library and about her husband's interest. We took the liberty of telling a little about her. "My husband and I were modest people," she said. "We lived a quiet life." Mrs. Feilcke, a native of Indianapolis, married her husband after he came from Germany in 1907.

Mr. Feilcke is gone now. But Mrs. Feilcke is making the most of her life. She lives quietly with her puppy dog. "Fraulein." She works in her garden. She helps the Library.

Private Rites Slated For Girl Who Drowned

Private funeral services will be held tomorrow for 18-month-old Joanne Byrne who drowned yesterday in the five-and-a-half foot deep filtration pit of an uncompleted swimming pool in Milford Manor, Lower Makefield Township.

The tragedy occurred shortly after 1 p.m. when the tot's mother, Mrs. Richard Byrnes of 7 Richie Lane, and a neighbor, Mrs. Bret Rich, 1108 Gloria Lane, discovered the child's body floating in the narrow, but deep, uncovered filter pit of a next door neighbor's pool.

Mrs. Rich lifted the child out of the water-filled pit and began applying artificial respiration.

Another neighbor, Mrs. Jean Bertozzi, of Gloria Lane, then took over and attempted mouth-to-mouth resuscitation.

She was pronounced dead on arrival at the hospital.

Lower Makefield Police Chief Robert Waterson, conducting the (Continued on Page 3, Col. 5) investigation, theorized that the child had apparently wandered over to the pool behind the house next to her own and fell into the pit.

The pool, owned by Mr. and Mrs. Edward G. Cook, 9 Richie Lane, is in the process of being completed. No fence has yet been erected around the pool.
